

The Intelligencer.

PREW & CAMPBELL, PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 9.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know how he can invest money to yield 6 per cent, the principal to be absolutely secure and obtainable on call. That's something several million people would be glad to find out. We do not know of any such investments.—Ch. Gazette.

The following is a summary of the work accomplished by the Supreme Court of the United States during the October term of 1880, which closed on Monday last. At the end of the previous term—the October term of 1879—the number of cases on the docket was 791. Since that time 411 new cases have been docketed, making a total of 1,202. Of these 184 have been argued during the term which has just closed, and 50 submitted on printed briefs, making a total of 234 cases actually brought before the court for consideration. This is a decrease of six cases from the term preceding. The number of cases finally disposed of and stricken from the docket during the term just ended is 305, as follows: Affirmed, 197; reversed, 48; dismissed, 26; questions answered, 1; docketed and dismissed, 25; settled and dismissed, 62; dismissed under twenty-eighth rule, 3; total, 365. The number of cases disposed of in the previous term was 398. It thus appears that the court has not been able to clear away this term as many cases as it did last—a result owing doubtless to its crippled condition. The number of cases now remaining on the docket is 857, an increase of 46 since the close of the October term of 1879.

A Question and Answer.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 6, 1881. Editors Intelligencer. It has been a matter of discussion among the members of our society (Union League), as to the population a territory must have before it can become a State, and how great a population it requires for each representative in a State. As we can find no definite answer we write to consult you upon the subject. If you will help us you will oblige us very much by answering through the columns of the INTELLIGENCER. Yours respectfully, S. COOKE GIBBS.

There is no prescribed population necessary for the admission of a State. States are admitted into the Union without special reference to the number of their inhabitants. Political considerations often control their admission. Each State after its admission is entitled to one member of the lower house of Congress without reference to its population. The present ratio of membership in Congress is one representative for every 131,425 inhabitants. It will be greater after the present census—probably 165,000. The ratio of representation varies after each census.

Money, Business, Stocks, Real Estate and Crops.

Cincinnati Equator of yesterday. A booming speculation is in preparation. Don't you forget it. There is some uneasiness among heavy holders of gas stock about the electric light.

The great plethora of money, the scarcity of good investments, are at the bottom of this Wall street rise.

The signs multiply that prices will yet touch higher figures than any yet attained for all sorts of stock. The unseasoned will go up with the sound.

Consoles reached yesterday another and a distier height than ever—up to 102 1/16, and still climbing higher. What is expected of United States forty.

The real estate market has shown wonderful activity during the last week, and there are now to be found many investors who prefer a net 4 per cent in this class of property rather than a doubtful 6 or 8 per cent in bonds or stocks that may default.

Reports from responsible parties state that winter wheat is looking well, and that a good deal of it which two weeks ago looked as though it would have to be plowed under, is now coming on right.

As the acreage this year is much greater than that of last season it is confidently expected that the crop will be fully equal to the last one. Spring wheat is all in, with the exception of a few sections where it will be in within the coming week.

Jackson and Garfield. To the Editor of the Chicago Tribune. Editors, Ill., May 6.—History repeats itself. The action taken by President Garfield yesterday closely resembles an occurrence during General Jackson's Administration. At that time Calhoun was the pride, hope, and dictator of a branch of the Democratic party, and assumed to dictate by means of a veto to the very Jackson.

The General promptly accepted the veto, and said it was a good time to ascertain who was President—the man elected by a majority of the people, or a Senator or a party of Senators. The result we all know. The people decided that Jackson was President, and in a historical fact that every Senator who attempted to rob him of his prerogative in the power to select public servants, for whom he held direct responsibility, was relegated to oblivion.

If General Garfield will throw himself upon the common sense and inherent love of personal right among the people, he will come out triumphant everywhere except in the boss-ridden State of New York. When the Senate, during Jackson's Administration, rejected the nomination of Van Buren as Minister to Great Britain, Senator Houston told that august body that they had broken a Minister and made a President; and it was true, though very contrary to the desires of the Senatorial cabal.

Some Difficulty about a Dog. "Look here, my dear," said Mr. Spooendyke, as he led a huge and shaggy dog into his wife's room, "I've got a dog a friend of mine gave me. What do you think of him?"

"Good gracious!" ejaculated Mrs. Spooendyke, mounting a chair in dismay, "is he mad?"

"No, Mrs. Spooendyke," related her husband, "he is not only not mad, but he isn't a step-ladder, either, nor a bird's eye view. He's a dog, and if you don't get out of that chair he'll probably bite your leg off."

Mrs. Spooendyke sat down on her feet and eyed the brute with some trepidation. "Maybe he's got the hydrophobia," she suggested by way of hearty welcome.

"Frape his head," agreed Mr. Spooendyke, "but if he has he's got it in his pocket. Come here, doggie, doggie, doggie!" and Mr. Spooendyke snapped his finger persuasively.

Keep quiet now while I teach him some tricks. Come here, doggie! Sit up, air! The dog stretched out his fore legs, opened his mouth like a folding bed-spring and growled.

"What makes him do that?" asked Mrs. Spooendyke, sitting on the back of the chair with her feet in the seat.

"Had that?" howled Mr. Spooendyke. "Think he you spoke made him do it? Think he works with wires? Got a notion he goes by steam? He don't, I tell you—he's alive, and he does it because that's the best of his mesely mind. What are ye sitting up there for? Can't ye see he don't like it? Now, you sit still. Here, doggie, doggie, doggie, sit up and beg!"

And Mr. Spooendyke held up an admonitory finger.

"The dog eyed Spooendyke with anything but an assuring glance.

"He's hungry," suggested Mrs. Spooendyke. "Dogs do like that when they want to be taken down in the yard and fed."

"Of course you know," grumbled Mr. Spooendyke. "I'll give you a perfect ignorance on the part of the police to be a dog to fight. Got anything in the house for him to eat?"

"There's some cold oyster stew and a piece of custard pie," said Mr. Spooendyke.

"That's all?" raved Mr. Spooendyke. "That's what! You've got it. You only need a committee and a fight over the proceeds to be a bench show. Where's the oysters?—Don't ye see that dog's pining for oysters? Now, you sit still. Here, doggie for him! Give him a lemon to stay his stomach!"

And Mr. Spooendyke jumped straight up in the air and landed on the dog.

The dog made for the open air with a howl, and Mr. Spooendyke gathered up twelve baskets of himself and looked after his prize.

"Never mind, dear," said Mr. Spooendyke, soothingly, "he'll come back."

"If he does I'll kill him!" said Mr. Spooendyke. "Now what you've done!—You've made me lose my dog and tear my trousers. Anything else about dogs you don't know? Got any more intelligence to impart about dogs? All you want is a bucket of branly around your neck and a snow storm to be a monk of St. Bernard."

With which logical conclusion Mr. Spooendyke began exploring his outlying districts for possible bites, while his wife speculated upon the safety of the sudden and eminently satisfactory disaffection of the dog.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Judge Jackson's Court. Charlotte (Kansas) State.

Judge Jackson of the U. S. Court seems to have no consideration for the money of the Government and less regard for the feelings of his fellow men. Court was set for Monday, but through the absence of the Judge it failed to meet, and some hundred or more persons in attendance on this Court have to neglect their business and pay board bills, while his honor is at ending to private affairs. This is no isolated case but has happened numbers of times since Jackson has been Judge.

We believe that Tut's Pills are destined to be the medicine of the world. They impart a power by which every organ of the body becomes healthy. Very few diseases exist that cannot be relieved by purging the bowels and restoring the liver to its normal condition, and for this purpose no remedy has ever been invented that has as happy an effect as these pills. They never rough the system, but act mildly and give tone to the whole body.

DEAD. KEATS—On Saturday, May 7, 1881, at 5:30 o'clock P. M., Mrs. ELIZABETH, wife of Joseph Keats, in the 5th year of age.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her husband, No. 64 Indiana street, Island, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend. Interment at Greenwood Cemetery.

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Cough, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings and Sprains, Burns and Scalds, General Bodily Pains, Tooth, Ear and Headache, Frosted Feet and Ears, and all other Pains and Aches.

No Preparation on earth equals Dr. JACOBE'S Ointment, simple and cheap External Remedy. A tried and true remedy for all rheumatic and other pains, and every one suffering with pain can find relief and positive proof of its claims. Directions in eleven languages.
